Searching Creek With Grappling Irons to Locate Bodies.

TROOPS PRESENT

Military Control Is Expected To Be Lifted In Niles Area Tomorrow—All Is Quiet at the Polls.

NILES, O., Nov. 4. (AP)—Persistent reports keep reaching the ears of Colonel L. S. Connelly of Cleveland, in charge of the national guardsmen still on duty here that men killed in the Ku Klux Klan and anti-Klan riot Saturday that their ballots were spirited away.

Search with grappling irons will probably be made at Mosquito Creek near where the fighting between the two factions was the hottest.

Colonel Connelly said that he was not surprised if one or more bodies were discovered there. The military control of the Niles area is expected to be lifted tomorrow. There are 250 troopers still there. No trouble was reported at the voting booths today.

Seathwaite Wettest Place In England

LONDON, Nov. 4. (AP)—Seathwaite, in Borrowdale, has been picked out as the wetest place in wet England. The meteorological department has published a table of the average annual rainfalls for the last 60 years, the prize falling to Seathwaite, which has recorded an average precipitation of 129.48 inches.

Seathwaite's actions in the matter of weather have been eccentric even for the British Isles, and during the last half century this place has recorded an average of 4.06 inches of rain in June, but in August there has been an average of 8 inches.

London can claim to be one of the arid spots of England with only 23.5 inches as an annual average.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS INDIVIDUALISTIC

Discuss Beginning of Academy In America Up to the Present Time.

LEXINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Being independent in nature, private schools can experiment in ways not possible for schools under public school control, McHenry Rhoads, superintendent of public instruction today told representatives of private schools in Kentucky.

He addressed them at the annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Private Secondary Schools, in gathering at Sayre College.

The work of the private schools at the present time is more individualistic than possible in public schools, he said. His topic was "the work and worth of private schools."

He discussed the beginning of the academy movement in America, from Franklin's school in Philadelphia in 1751 to the present day and from its origin of curriculuin with Latin, English and mathematics to its amplification and famifications of nowadays.

Detailing the rapid development to 1850, "the peak of its operations, developed almost exclusively east of the iMssissippi river," he took up Phillips Andover and Exeter academies and others, summarizing that by 1850 there were 1,007 private schools in New England; 1,635 in the Middle Atlantic State; 2,640 in the Southern States; 753 in the Upper Mississippi Valley; a total of 6,085 in the United States; 12,360 teachers in these schools, with 263,000 pupils.

"In Kentucky, an act of 1798 provides that the county courts of certain counties might be given 6,000 acres of public lands for the purpose of establishing and supporting a county academy," he said.

"An act of 1805 further extended this provision to any county with the principal purpose of aiding aiding these academies to carry on their work, and about 50 academies were established on this basis.

"There were established in Kentucky all told 330 academies. Many of these schools developed into the smaller colleges of the present day Others abandoned the field to the public high school, while a number still exist as preparatory schools."

Discussing the character of the private schools, he said they offered broader curriculum than the Latin grammar school; they admitted girls, nearly all on a tuition basis and they were early teacher training institutions.

"Being independent in nature, they could experiment in ways not possible for schools under public control," he said.

Venus Never Did Possess Any Arms

PARIS, Nov. 4. (AP) —it may be some consolation to art lovers throughout the world, who have wondered in what position were the missing arms of the famous Venus de Milo. This statuette is an exact copy of the famous Venus, and like the original it has no arms. Dr. Edde therefore concludes that the Venus de Milo never at any time had arms, and he believes that the sculptor, when he had carved out of the stone such a divine form gave up all idea of adding arms.

When the Venus de Milo was discovered on the island of Milo a large reward was offered to anyone who could find the arms, but in spite of extensive search, nothing was discovered.

FORD ASKED TO BUY WHOLE CITY

Detroit Automobile Maker May Purchase Williamsburg and Restore it to Former Beauty.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Henry Ford has been asked to buy Williamsburg, ancient capital of Virginia, and restore to it the quaint and picturesque beauty of the revolutionary period. It then would be preserved as a living lesson in American history for future generations.

The suggestion which Mr Ford is said to be considering, was advanced by Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, of William and Mary College, through William Ford, brother of the automobile manufacturer.

Under the plan, Mr. Ford would purchase a large part of the present city of Williamsburg, at an estimated cost of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. A colonial holding corporation then would be formed according to Dr. Goodwin's suggestion, to which the city would be turned over for all time. The task of re-creating the colonial seat of government would go forward under the direction of the holding corporation. All evidences of modern days would be removed. Motion picture houses, restaurants, telephone poles, and all the trademarks of the present day would exist no more.

In the place of today's Williamsburg there would stand the House of Burgesses, rebuilt as it originally stood. Raleigh Tavern, once more would stand with inviting door for the traveler. Main street again would be lined with myrtle trees and hedged by roses. Shacks would give way to copies of the colonial houses which formerly occupied their sites. It is not planned to compel present owners of the colonial homes to sell them t the corporation, but options would be requested in view of future sales.

Dr. Goodwin, who for years has been interested in the preservation of the remaining marks of Virginia colonial history, is quoted as follows:

"For some time I have cherished the hope that Mr. Ford might be and doubtless would be interested in making a contribution to the United States of the old colonial capital of Virginia.

"Williamsburg was associated with all the great debates, resolutions and actions which resulted in the establishment of our federal government. It is distinctly the most interesting colonial relic that now remains in America and should be rescued and preserved. Unless something is done with in the next few years, it will be too late."

Coolidge Anticipates 350 Electoral College Votes

Herrin Stops Fighting In Order to Vote

HERRIN, Ill., Nov. 4. (AP)—Seventy-five national guardsmen some with bayonets fixed, patrolled Williamson county today to prevent threatened clashes between the Ku Klux Klan and their opponents. Heavy voting is reported and there is no semblance of disorder this morning. There are two militiamen in each precinct.

Thief Has Rough Ride In Box

BERLIN, Nov. 4. (AP) — Peter Ahrens, a piano tuner, recently was arrested for stealing goods from a freight car. When arraigned he made a complaint against the freight handlers' method of handling goods in transit. Ahrens, in order to get into the freight car, constructed a freight box cushioned inside in which he secreted himself.

The box bore this caution: "Glassware. Handle carefully. Do not throw or turn over."

Expects Republican Working Majority In House Next Session.

PARTY CONFIDENT

The president slept until 8 this morning, much later than usual. Soon after rising he was handed the news report of the early returns of New England.

Greatest Vote in History of Kentucky is Expected

Indications Point to a Record-Breaking Kentucky Vote.

ON HAND EARLY

One-Third of the Registered Vote of Louisville Was Cast Two Hours After the Polls Opened This Morning.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4.—One third of the registered vote of Louisville had been cast two hours after the polls opened this morning, election commissioners declared today.

With central and western Kentucky voting heavily early today, according to reports received by the Associated Press, all indications point toward a record Kentucky balloting.

The voters in every community were greeted by gorgeous fall weather. Louisville, Lexington, Paducah, Frankfort, Covington, Newport, and other cities reported that voters were appearing at the polls in great numbers immediately after they opened at six o'clock. When the polls close at four o'clock today, Kentucky's greatest vote is expected to have been polled.

Canadian Raises Rust Proof Wheat

WINNEPEG, Man., Nov. 4.— A new variety of wheat which will resist all attacks of rust, a species of Marquis which is said to yield from four to six bushels to the acre more than the ordinary variety, has been developed by Samuel Larcombe, a prominent grain grower of Birtle, Man., The new wheat has been tried out in areas in western Canada infested with rust and came through without damage, according to Larcombe.

Larcombe has been a Manitoba farmer for 30 years and in that time has won 3,000 prizes on wheat at Canadian and American expositions. He won the world's championship for wheat at the Peoria International Fair in 1917 and in 1918 the sweepstakes for the best individual farmer's exhibit as well as sweepstakes for wheat in the dry farming section of the International Soil Products Exposition in Kansas City.

Live Viper Found In Woman's Stomach

CHUR, Switzerland, Nov. 4.—(AP).—When the stomach of a young nurse who had died in terrible agony was opened a living viper was found. The patient had been put on a strict diet and the venomous snake, driven by hunger, had eaten the intestines of the young woman.

Only one explanation seems likely, namely, that the girl, while on a hike in the Swiss mountains, drank from a mountain brook and swallowed either a serpent egg or a small living reptile.

Germans Do Not Observe 8-Hour Day

HANOVER, Nov. 4.—(AP).—The eight-hour day, while theoretically guaranteed by the new German constitution, is by no means generally observed among factory workers, according to an investigation just conducted by the Factory Workers' union. Of the 481 locals of the union, 320 turned in reports covering 4,900 concerns employing 491,449 persons.

The results show that only 51 per cent of the employees in the concerns investigated work up to 48 hours per week, while 3.6 percent work from 48 to 51 hours, 20 percent from 51 to 54 hours, and 15.9 percent over 54 hours per week.

Military Display For Young Prince

BELGRADE, Nov. 4. (AP) — Clebration of the first anniversary of the birth of Prince Peter, heir to the Jugo-Slavian throne, was made the occasion of a great military display which has aroused much opposition in several quarters.

All the troops of the Belgrade garrisons were turned out, and the principal ceremonies were held, was lined with infantry, the soldiers wearing steel shell helmets, while the side streets near the edifice were full of small artillary, machine guns and other warlike material.

The country is indeed quite proud of the year-old prince, and his recent pictures, showing clearly that he has the traditional Karageorge nose, have been placed on sale everywhere.

American Building In Copenhagen

Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 4. —Erection of an "American House" in Copenhagen, where American business interests might be grouped together in one building in London, was advocated by the American Ambassador, Dr. John D. Prince, in a recent address before the American Club here.

Dr. Prince said that both he and Consul-General Marion Letcher favored the idea, and that the latter was ready to support it to the extent of moving the consular officers to such a building, truly representative of American business interests. In his speech Dr. Prince emphasized the growing importance of Copenhagen with its excellent Free Port and commanding geographical position as an emporium for American trade on the Baltic, facts he said, that made an American House in Copenhagen the more desirable.

It is understood that a Danish architect has worked out a detailed plan for such a building, and that the plan will shortly be put before the American Colony in Copenhagen by a Danish business man with large American interests.

Swiss Fond Of American Raisins

ZURICH, Nov. 4. (AP)—American methods introduced here have made Zurich the greatest raisin eating town in all Switzerland. Raisins from the United States may be purchased here in small packages, like they are sold in the American cities, the idea proving popular with the Swiss from the very beginning.

Zurich for years has been more or less fond of raisins which came chiefly from Smyrna. After the Smyrna fire last year there was much fretting among the merchants as to where their fresh supplies were to be obtained. When William H. Mather, commercial attache of the American consul general's office here heard of the plight of the dealers, he cabled immediately to Washington. Washington, apparently, soon got in touch with the American raisin dealers, and within 16 days American raisins were on sale here.

Since then the American raisins have held their place here, and has been placed on sale quite generally in various parts of Switzerland.

Sunshine and Fresh Air For Bad Girls

Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 4. —The English reformers' idea of making bad girls better is to give them trips to the sea-side. Accordingly last year several of the detention institutions for young girls took parties of inmates to various seaside resorts, where they were given a two weeks' vacation with only the supervision of two matrons of each party of 25 girls.

Last year's outings proved so successful that nearly all similar institutions this year took up the idea and allowed their best behaved girls to have a vacation. The expenses for the trip, above what it would have cost to feed and provide for the girls at the institution, were donated by persons, interested in progressive and humanizing methods in the correctional institut. ...tions of the country.

Popularity Contest Closes Wednesday Night is Decided

84 and 14

Miss Louise Carr Still Heads List of Candidates in Race.

VERY LIGHT VOTE

All Contestants Notified of Change of Plans—Final Count Will Be Made Tomorrow Night.

Yesterday's vote in the American Legion "Popularity Contest" was very light, only 5780 votes, being cast during the entire day. This small vote can only be accounted for by saying that many votes are being held back until the last minute. The vote yesterday changed the position of only two candidates. Miss Verdie Hurst regained second place and Miss Alberta Yonkers dropped to third place. Miss Louise Carr still reigns supreme in first place.

At a meeting of Legion Officials last night it was definately decided to conclude the Popularity contest Wednesday Nov. 5, rather than to extend it until the last of the week as was originally planned. This change was made because of the fact that it will give the fortunate candidate a longer time in which to prepare for Armistice Day Also because it will give Legion Officials a longer time in which to devote their entire time and attention to the general Armistice Day program. All candidates who could be reached by telephone were advised of the change in plans and all approved of the change. Legion Officials urge all friends of the candidates to get their votes in at once in order that final count may be made and results announced as soon as possible.

School Children Demand Justice

LONDON, Nov. 4. (AP) — The record of Miss Margaret J. Williams, a Richmond school teacher, who has caned only one pupil during a teaching of 40 years, is rather unique in this country where the pedagogues still accept the old adage "spare the rod and spoil the child."

When some kind of punishment becomes necessary, Miss Williams usually writes to the mothers and obtains their consent before it is given. "I hardly ever do punish them," she said, "but when I do I make it a rule to hear their side of the question first. I recognize that they have a side. No one, you know, has so much a sense of justice as a child. And I always wait till my temper cools down before I do anything."

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT most cities need more street lighting.

THAT in some cities the business section is taken care of while the residential section is forgotten. In other cities the business section is lighted up as it should be, the business men have to make up a purse to pay for it.

THAT every city should have good street lights. When they haven't, it just shows that some officials are either asleep on the job, or don't realize the importance of proper street lights.

THAT good street lighting is essential for better business, also for safety.

THAT good street lighting means protection for pedestrians and traffic.

THAT it advertises a city and shows it to be progressive.

THAT the proper lighting of all streets of a city is a public necessity. For any city to cut down street lighting on a theory of economy is foolish.

PROPER LIGHTING of streets pays dividend sin safety and guards lives and property and increases business.

A city well lighted is well liked.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Frank W. Stearns of Boston, political and personal patron of Calvin Coolidge, maintained throughout the presidential campaign a placid and unruffled disposition utterly unlike anything ever before seen in Washington.

Even the atmosphere of confident calmness in which the president moved was less impressive than the tranquil placidity with which Stearns awaited the result of the election balloting.

The reason for this imperturbability, it is now disclosed, is that Stearns didn't read a line of politics in the newspapers during the whole campaign. He didn't want his own judgment of his candidate beclouded by what others had to say of him, and he wasn't interested at all in the other candidates. He preferred to keep his mind and his time free to figure positive ways of advancing the Coolidge cause, without regard to the criticisms or claims of opponents.

• • •

THIS trait of Stearns, it seems, is one he has carefully practiced in business. To it he attributes no little of the success that has made him one of Boston's merchant princes. Since it worked in business, he saw no reason why it would not work in politics.

Stearns never reads anything the newspapers say about anything in which he is interested. He never reads the ads of his rival merchants. If he's planning a sale, he doesn't want his own methods upset and his judgment influenced by the articles or prices advanced by his competitors.

• • •

NOT only Stearns' course, but Coolidge's course, throughout the campaign has been shaped by this viewpoint. For the Stearns and Coolidge way of looking at things are closely related. For years, ever since young Coolidge was first elected to the Massachusetts Legislature, Stearns has been his adviser and mentor. The Stearns philosophy in business and politics is constantly reflected in the Coolidge attitude. And the Stearns maxim is:

"Mind your own business; never ape the other fellow; never imitate. Speak little; think much, and don't let the other fellow stir you to defensive action. That always admits weakness. Better no move than one that is not positive."

FRAU WIEDFELDT, mistress of the German embassy, like the average American housewife, has her troubles with the "servant problem."

When the German ambassador submitted his resignation, some time ago, he expected to be relieved by Sept. 15. So he sent his household servants back to Germany, expecting he and Frau Wiedfeldt would spend the remainder of his term here vacationing in Florida.

But the German government upset the plan, by asking that Wiedfeldt remain in Washington until after the Dawes reparations policy had been placed in working order. This, it was hinted, might be anywhere from six months to a year.

A quest for suitable servants here in Washington seemed hopeless. Competition was keen, wages high. So a hurry-up call was sent back to the Fatherland, and the Wiedfeldt servants are sailing on the next boat back to America.

Bond Issue Center Of Popular Battle

FRANKFORT, Nov. 4.—(AP).—Center of a legal and popular battle for almost a year, before entry of other issues of Tuesday's election and possibly fated for further contingencies, the bond issue has been subject of much discussion. In brief the act authorizing the issue provides:

Issual and sale in five annual installments of state bonds to the total amount of $75,000,000 to draw no more than five percent interest; the accrued interest amounting to a variously estimated figure to revert back to the sinking fund. The proceeds realized from the sale of the bonds would be used:

$50,000,000 for completion of the primary system of roads;

6,000,000 for redeeming outstanding interest bearing warrants.

$,000,000 for advancement and equalization of educational facilities.

$2,000,00 for the four white Normal schools.

1,000,000 for colored Normal schools.

$5,000,000 for penal, charitable and corrective institutions, including three hospitals for the insane, feeble minded institutions, reform school, state reformatory and state penitentiary.

$1,000,000 vriously divided in specific sums for completion of geological survey, Kentucky School for the Blind, Kentucky School for the Deaf and Tuberculosis sanatoria.

Teh fight for and against the issue between pay as you go proponents and bond proponents has been a bitter one.

POLITICS IN THE EAST ARE GLANCED OVER

Massachusetts Trying To Dethrone David I. Walsh.

REPUBLICANS ALL

Because of Fact President Coolidge Was Born In Vermont a Large Vote Is Expected.

MASSACHUSETTS.—The Republicans in Massachusetts have made strenuous effort to recapture the seat in the United States Senate held by David I. Walsh, Democrat, since 1919, the state prior to that time having had two Republican Senators since the party was founded. Speaker Frederick H. Gillett, of the national house of representatives, is the Republican candidate against Senator Walsh, who seeks re-election.

For governor the contest is between Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, Democrat, and Lieutenant Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Republican. Among the referendum questions on the ballot will be those calling for a vote as to whether daylight saving shall be continued in the state, whether the state shall adopt a state prohibitory enforcement law and whether a gasoline tax of two cents a gallon shall be imposed to aid in the maintenance of highways. Massachusetts being the home estate of President Coolidge, who was governor of the state when elected to the vice-presidency, both parties have done their best to bring out a full vote.

Congressman Peter F. Tague, Democrat, defeated for renomination in the tenth district in the September primaries, will run on stickers against John J. Douglass Democrat, James E. Maguire, Republican, and Thomas J. Giblin, independent. This district is entirely in Boston. The state at present has 13 Republican and three Democratic congressmen.

NEW HAMPSHIRE U. S. Senator Henry W. Keyes, Republican, is a candidate for re-election in New Hampshire, being opposed by State Treasurer George E. Ferrand, Democrat. Congressman William N. Rogers, Democrat, and Edward H. Watson, Republican, also seek re-election. Governor Fred H. Brown, Democrat, is the first New Hampshire governor to run for a second term in many years. His Republican opponent is John G. Winant. Governor Brown was elected two years ago by a plurality of 8,634. The state usually has gone Republican, but Wilson carried it in both his campaigns for president, although by a margin of only 56 votes the second time. Harding carried the state by more than 32,000 in 1920.

VERMONT—No U. S. Senator is to be elected in Vermont this year. Congressman Ernst W. Gibson, Republican, is a candidate for re-election in the second district and Elbert S. Brigham is the Republican nominee in the first district. In Vermont the Republican nomination for Governor, U. S. Senator and Congressman always has been equivalent to an election. Because of the fact that President Coolidge was born in Vermont an unusually large vote is expected Nov. 4. Franklin S. Billings is the Republican nominee for governor. The Democratic primary nominee, Howard H. Shaw, died on September 26.

MAINE State officers, Senator and Congressmen were elected in Maine in September. No state matters will come before the voters at the national election.

RHODE ISLAND The legislative controversy in which Rhode Island has been involved for the past year is playing a large part in the campaign. With Lieutenant Governor Felix A. Toupin, who, as ex-officio president of the Senate, directed the Democratic filibuster against the Republican majority, as the Democratic candidate for governor, the issues involved have been passed along to the voters. The Democrats contended for a constitutional convention, elimination of the property qualification for local voting, and a 48 hour law. The Republican senators, after the setting off of a bromine gas bomb near the president's rostrum in the state senate, fled to Rutland, Mass., where they still remain, although several are candidates for re election. The Republican candidate for governor is former Governor Aram J. Pothier, a banker and manufacturer of Woonsocket.

The fight for the United States senate seat vacated by the death of the late Le B. B. Colt has been between Jesse H Metcalf, Republican, Governor William S. Flynn, Democrat, and Edward M. Sullivan, former Democratic mayor of Cranston. Independent. Contests for congressional seats follow former lines.

CONNECTICUT The pre election campaign in Connecticut has been relatively quiet.

Roman Coins Are Dug Up In Britain

LONDON, Nov. 4—(AP).—Interest in excavation of Roman remains seems to be receiving new impetus in many parts of England and work being carried on at Portishead on the Somerset seaboard is yielding highly important results.

These excavations had their beginning after a ploughman casually turned up a small quantity of coins, which upon examination were found to be of Roman origin. The work has now been taken in hand, by an archaeologist, R. E. Godwin, who reports the recovery of no fewer than 4,000 coins.

"I have already found 4,000 bronze coins," said Mr. Godwin "and stray one's are being added from day to day. They are in excellent preservation and date from A. D. 22 to A. D. 400 (21 years before the Roman conquest or Britain to just before the final evacuation.)

"They belong to practically every period of the Roman Empire, and it is remarkable that apparently no two are exactly alike. The field in which I am working was used by the ancient Britons as a camp, and this was afterwards taken over by the Romans."

Mah Jongg Suppers

With the coming of the cooler days of Fall, comes an interest in "evenings at home," entertaining friends in one way or another, and in the serving of something different, especially if the evening is cool and the guests stay late, they will need and enjoy something substantial to eat.

Why not surprise them with a Mah Jongg Supper? As the popularity of this fascinating game is spreading rapidly from Fifth Avenue to Main Street, and we are all anxious to learn to "pong" and "chow," and to tell the difference between the Dragons and the East Winds, why not learn something about Chinese cookery too, so that we may have refreshments in keeping with the spirit of the game.

Whenever we think of Chinese food, we usually think of Chop Suey. It is the general impression that we got this dish from China. It is really a Chinese dish, but the story goes that it was invented in this country by Chinese chefs and later introduced in China by Chinese students returning there from America. Whether this is actually true or not, the fact remains that Chop Suey is equally popular in American countries as well as in China.

Judging from the way people patronize the Chinese restaurants especially for this dish, proves its popularity, without a doubt. Many housewives now make it at home for occasional variety.

There are a number of varieties of chop suey which may be served at the Mah Jongg supper, either plain or made with chicken or shrimps, or mushrooms, and with or without the bean sprouts.

With Chop Suey, rice—plain boiled or steamed—is served. Some like hot rolls in addition to the rice, although the rice takes the place of bread quite nicely.

Or instead of Chop Suey, you can serve Chow Mein, which means fried noodles.

And tea, of course. No tea seems quite so delicious as the tea which is served at the Chinese restaurants. They use the best teas, of course. If you would like something especially nice you can get an exquisitely flavored tea made from jasamine flowers, at most Chinese or oriental shops.

Now as to the dessert to serve with your Mah Jongg supper, while you can do quite nicely without any as few desserts are used by the Chinese, yet small cakes are popular. If you make them at home, you can bake a plain cake in a large sheet, and cut it into squares or in diamond shapes, then use different frostings and decorations to furnish variety. Make the cakes small, however, as most of your guests will probably not care for a large piece of cake after eating a substantial supper of Chop Suey.

CHOP SUEY

2—pounds lean pork, or one pound pork and one of beef
2—pounds bean sprouts
2—cups finely cut celery
1—to 2 cups onions cut into threads Salt to taste
1—cup soup stock or water
1—tablespoon cornstarch
1—tablespoon Molasses
2—tablespoons bacon or beef drippings
1— can mushrooms, if desired

Cut meat into cubes, about 1-4 to 1-2 inches thick. Put the bacon or beef drippings into a deep saucepan or a large skillet. When hot add the meat and onions and fry for about ten minutes. Then add the chopped celery, sprouts, stock or water, seasonings, and cook about 15 minutes. Add the molasses. Mix cornstarch with a little cold water and stir into the boiling stock or water until it thickens. It is then ready to serve.

Chicken and shrimp chop suey are prepared in much the same way, except that only about half as many onions are used.

WOMAN LOVELY WOMAN

Courting attention, while seemingly indifferent to it, worldly but delicately naive, dignified yet appealing, she stands reflected in the public eye at moments she gazes steadily at the polish on her finger nails. Again she stands poised with arms extended, palms down, after the manner of a base ball umpire declaring the runner safe. Often times she may be seen caressing a rose and frequently she is intent upon twining herself with beads Her face, ah how can I describe it! That mouth, and the nose above it, perfect in their adenoidal expression; the tresses of a string like softness; the graceful neck which is just a wee shade goitrish. Ah Addie, my gaze is harrassed by the color concocted in London and the lines conceived in Paris. Surely Solomon's Sheba in all her beauty was not arrated in the "slender silhouette," in many clever variations," as is my lady of the fashion plates.

PASSING OF THE PENNANT

The self starter has displayed the crank. The acetylin sparkler has given way to the electric glare and the bathing girl now splashes on the wind shield and curtain from whence the erstwhile pennant was wont to float. The several states would save time and money if they were to issue bathing girls in lieu of license plates. A car without a bathing girl is as rare as a long haired girl at a summer resort. Using the present color combinations each state could work out a bathing suit which would cause Annette Kellerman to fall off the Christmas tree! How chic the Alabama girls would appear in their cream and brown creations. The Arizona maidens clad in deep blue and white would lend dignity to any vehicle. California's green and white apparel, Colorado's pearl gray wear's of light tand and brown suit would owe any speed cop. The dashing black and yellow of the Illinois sirens, the gold and blue of the Pennsylvania mermaids and the mustard tellow and black of the Michigan bathers would cause the Lorell to shed a tear and even Mack Sennett might blink once or twice. These are a few of the spectacular and stunning possibilities which await the hand of the innovator

Intriguing as the bathing girls are, who can not regret the passing of the pennant? It deluded the tourist into believing that one had traveled extensively. Every village and resort contributed its pennant. Kokomo, Windsor, Little Rock, Kalamazoo, Moose Jaw, fluttered in the breeze as the uniquitious motorist rumbled his dusty way about the country. So much for Auld Lang Syne. It is the bathing girl now.

The astronomer wants to know who lent the handle of the big dipper.

Argentina to Raise Many Polo Ponies

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 4—(AP)—The Argentine polo ponies which contributed so much to the victory of the Argentite four in the Olympic polo championship, are the product of four or five generations of crossing "criollo," or native, ponies with small-sized English thoroughbreds. They are considered to combine the qualities of endurance and cleverness of the native horse with the speed of the English product.

Since the tour of Argentine polo players to England and the United States in 1922, when the players sold their mounts at a very large profit, the breeding of polo ponies has almost become an industry in Argentina. For a number of years polo ponies have been produced here on four or five ranches, and have a sale, in Europe, mostly in England. The King of Spain has been one good buyer of them

Now, with the additional prestige gained by the Argentine product at the Olympics, other ranches are devoting themselves to breeding. Sires and mothers accustomed to the large rodeos of the Argentine pampas are selected, for they are not afraid of being ridden down, especially if they have been used in parting cattle.

POLITICS IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

Republicans Strong In North Carolina, Tennessee Interested In Senate Race.

NORTH CAROLINA—The Republican party has entered a full state ticket, has a candidate for the United States Senate and is competing in eight of the ten congressional districts of the state. Only in the third and fourth districts are the Democrats unopposed.

TENNESSEE—There is in this state a contest between Republicans and Democrats for Governor and the United States Senate, as well as railroad Commissioner, and the congressional races. There is no Democratic candidate for Congress in the first district, where the race is between a Republican and an independent Republican. Democrats are unopposed in the fourth, sixth and seventh districts.

ARKANSAS—Five of Arkansas' seven congressional districts will have contests, the Republicans having named candidates in the second, third, fourth, fifth and seventh districts. The state election in Arkansas is held in October.

FLORIDA—There is a full state ticket and candidates for Congress in all Florida districts except the third.

ALABAMA—The Republicans in this state have a chance to vote for a full state ticket and five candidates for Congress Contests for Congress will be waged in the first third, fifth, tenth and seventh districts.

MISSISSIPPI—Republican electors have been placed on the Mississippi ticket, but the attorney general's office has ruled that candidates for Congress on the Republican ticket can not be included, as they were nominated in convention and not at a primary.

LOUISIANA—The situation in Louisiana differs from other states in the South in that, while candidates for Congress are in the field, names of La Follette-Wheeler electors have been refused places on the ticket. The secretary of state has taken the position that petitioners for such must be voters who had declared themselves independent of the Democratic and Republican parties.

VIRGINIA—The state of Virginia has a Republican candidate for the United States Senate, and Democratic candidates have opposition in the second, sixth, seventh and ninth congressional districts.

SOUTH CAROLINA—In South Carolina the Republicans made no nominations for state officers or representatives in Congress, because Democratic nominations are usually equivalent to election. Republican voters, however, will have an opportunity to cast their ballots for presidential electors.

GEORGIA—In this state three presidential tickets are in the November contest but no opposition to the regular Democratic candidates for the state offices has developed.

Britons Still Set Against Feminism

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Although another report has been submitted by a commission recommending an increase in the number of women police employed in England, it is predicted in many quarters that such a recommendation will not be speedily carried out.

The fact of the matter is that although great political and social changes have taken place in England, this is still a country of masculine domination, albeit the women received the vote during the war. What the women must overcome is the traditional prejudice which men have against feminine competition in the various callings of life.

Sir Neville Macready, former head of the London police force thinks that London alone might use fully employ 200 women police constables, whereas at the present time there are only 110 women on the police force of the whole country.

Although women who are carrying on the fight over here to win recognition for women of all the rights which men enjoy, hail the police commission's report as a victory, they realize that much ancient prejudice must be overcome before the English's "coppette" can enter into the fullness of jobs which were so long the exclusive property of the sterner sex.

Foot Ball Fans Unjust In Criticism

A most regrettable tendency of crowds is unjust criticism of players. The fan is so eager to win that it causes him to be thoughtlessly cruel at times. Imagine two teams of young men, few of them old enough to vote, trotting out before sixty thousand excited, howling fans. Think of the responsibility those youths are carrying. Each has his school, his friends, his backers—all expecting him to win. And every man on the field goes through a fight that would leave nine out of ten men in the stands lying on the field were they to try it for only a few minutes. In no other game are brains and brawn so necessary together as in football.

And yet we hear fans censure a 19-year old quarterback because he tried a run when he might have passed, or a tackle just out of high school because some clever opponents boxed him in during a particularly hot moment of play.

You know, football is made more a game of occasional chance by the shape of the ball. A football will not bounce true; it is likely to shoot at unexpected angles when it gets loose. When I was coaching the Oak Park high school team, Barret of our team tackled an opponent so hard that he dropped the ball. The ball bounced to the right, carried by the wind, and another of our opponents, a player who was loafing outside of the danger zone, picked it up and carried it to our two yard line before we stopped him. So a loafer became a hero by a trick of fate.

But such things are likely to happen any time, and cause fans to censure players for fumbles and other mishaps. When I go to a field before a big game and hear the roar of the fans I almost feel an antagonism, which I realize is in a measure unjust. But I know they are not thinking of what the players are going through. They have no realization of the training that has made the players the perfect specimens of physical fitness they must be to stay in there. They are thinking only of winning. I feel that every man I send on the field is going to play the best football he knows how to play. If he makes a mistake it will not be because he was not trying. Yet the fans will jump on him unmercifully.

"We lost the Iowa game because Jones dropped that pass!" If Smith hadn't tried to run the ends we might have beat Minnesota!" Such are the remarks one hears on every side, and they are unfair.—Coach Zuppke in The Athletic and Outing World.

Today Is the Day We Elect Whom?

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 4.—Today's vote in Kentucky, which has always gone democratic so far as choice of president is concerned, with the exception of 1896, when McKinley secured twelve of the 13 electoral votes, expected generally to mount over the million mark, had for contrast these official figures of four years ago, certified by Fred A. Vaughan, then secretary of state:

For President—1,017 democratic plurality.

(The Progressive party, in the race this year with LaFollette at the head, had no ticket)

For Senator—

Senator Ernst over former Gov. Beckham—1,082 Republican majority.

For Congress—

First District—Barkley over Hughes—2,850 democratic majority.

Second District—Kincheloe over Bassett—9,401 democratic majority (No opposition this year)

Third District—Thomas over Gilliam—537 democratic majority.

Fourth District—Johnson over Haswell—3,918 democratic majority.

Fifth District—Ogden over Richmond—12,399 republican plurality.

Sixth District—Rouse over Bryson—13,734 democratic plurality.

Seventh District—Centrill (Dem.) —no opposition. (Virgil Chapman, democrat, this year no opposition).

Eighth District—Gilbert over Sweger—2,850 democratic majority (No opposition this year).

Ninth District.—Fields over Blair—5,633 democratic majority.

Tenth District—Langley (Rep.) no opposition.

Eleventh District—Robsion (Rep.) Sampson—15,522 republican majority.

The vote by districts in the senatorial race showed Ernst carrying the fifth, tenth, and eleventh districts. His majority over his democratic opponent in the eleventh was 13,400; in the tenth, 13,840; in the fifth, Jefferson county, 10,05[illegible]

Beckham's greatest majority was in the first district, 22,547.
